

The Churches of Georgetown

A warm welcome to visitors and new residents

by Gary Nelson
Mayor of Georgetown and Chairman of First Texas Bank

Whether you are visiting, are passing through or are a new resident, we welcome you to our fine city and to the many churches of Georgetown.

As a fast-growing city proximate to Austin trying to preserve our small-town heritage and nature's beauty, we are fortunate to have our moments of respite and spiritual guidance provided by our churches and ministers.

There are 55 churches in our city — at the time of this publication's production — serving the various faith's, belief's, concerns and needs of our diverse population.

We who live here believe it is our churches that provide the common thread uniting us all, helping us pull together when we are facing difficult decisions as individuals, families and community.

From farmers to retail and from builders to high tech, our community shares an ecumenical spirit of belief in a higher order of values, reaching back to our pioneer days. It is clear that those values remain with us to this day.

Ours is a vibrant, safe and industrious community with many reaching out through their churches to assist those who are temporarily in need.

As you settle in or drive around and see the sights and perhaps do a little shopping, you will undoubtedly run across church after church.

We hope, however, that this publication, which lists all the city's churches by faith, name and phone number, can save you some time finding the church of your choice.

The map inside, while not to scale, should help you find your way around. Many of the churches have displays surrounding the map, providing their times of services and other church functions.

Once again, we and the churches of Georgetown welcome you to our fine city and we hope you enjoy your visit or your family's new home.
